SHERLOCK HOLMES PLEASES THEM ALL

The Detective Play Has a Fascination for Grown-Up Boys.

Those who would be ashamed to be caught reading one of the Niek Carter Detective Stories, sit boldly in the view of everyone and witnesses the production of the play, "Sherlock Holmes," The play has in it just the stuff that makes such entertailing reading to the helf-the play. "Sherlock Holmes." The play has in it just the stuff that makes such entertaining reading to the half-grown boy—and what boy has not, at some time in his life, followed the fortunes of Old Sleuth or Nick Carter? Say what one will, "Sherlock Holmes" has about it the same sert of fascination that the dime novel has for the boy, and the bry, now grown up, goes to the play, and perhaps the next day will throw behind the fire one of the volumes of the Great Detective Story Library, which his son has not hidden as carefully as he should. "Sherlock Holmes" has about him that hir of mystery, and a cool, deliberate manner, that appeals alike to men and women. He poses through the four acts, with his ashen complexion, the result of too many injections of the seven per cent, solution of coccline, a little habit of lis, which adds to the interest which he nawakens in the spectator. The great detective presumes just, the characteristics to make him a pleturesque stage character. It is a "walk-over" for any actor to play the part. The actor who, being physically qualified for the part, falls to make an impression on his audience, has very little excuse for following his profesion. Mr. Erroll Dunbar made an acceptable Sherlock Holmes. All of the others in the cast rendered him the necessary support, and the play, as it always does, thoroughly pleased those who witnessed it.

Lighthouse by the Sea.

Ly pleased those who witnessed it.

Lighthouse by the Sea.

Of all the scenie productions which have been-presented at the Bijon Theatre, none have surpassed the scenery used in the presentation of the play. "Lighthouse by the Sea." which holds the boards at the Bijou this week, The storm scene is one of the prettiest and most thrilling imaginable. The company presenting the play is a capable one, the work of the performers meriting the generous applianse. The play will be seen at every performance this week, including to-morrow and Saturday matinees.

BUSY SCENES ON THE SLIP

Mart Was Alive With Selling and Buying Until 3 P. M. Yesterday.

Shockee Slip, the tobacco mart of the oity, was one of the busiest sections of Richmond yesterday, the warehouses all having unexpectedly large sales of loose was 3 o'clock in the afternoon when the buyers completed the round of rate of about three piles auctioned per minute, an idea can be formed of the quantity sold.

At 1 P. M., while the sale at Shelburne's warehouse was in progress, half hour intermission was had for lunch which was served to the buyers as a compliment by Mr. Silas Shelburne, Near ly 150,000 pounds were sold, the Stonewal warehouse leading in the high price re-warehouse leading in the high price record with $16.

The indications last night were that the sales would be considerably larger even to-day than yesterday, the warehouse section being overrun with wagons and teams. Shockoe has first sale to-day, and then Stonewall, Sholburne and Crenshaw in the order stated. Early in the afternoon wagons began payring in, and by night almost all the houses were pretty well filled with loaded wagons. At Shockoe warehouse about seventy-five wagons were in by 5:30 o'clock, and they were still coming. The stell capacity of the warehouse, stables was taxed to accommodate the horses. At Crenshaw's, commodate the horses. At Constant Stonewall and Shelburne's the same condition existed, though not quite to such an extent as at Shockoe, which has first sale to-day. Not only the warchouse floors, but the adjacent streets, were crowded with wagons and teams, and a busy scene was presented.

Shockoe warchouse yesterday led the list in the quantity sold with about 62,000 and will probably sell $5,000 to 90,000 to-day. Crenshaws warchouse yesterday sold about 16,000 pounds at an average of $7.50 for the sale. Stonewall sold 16,004, and made the record price of the day. At Shelburne's warchouse the day's sales aggregated 55,000 pounds.

W. D. Butler and Company, proprietors of the Stonewall warchouse, have begun the year' with fine prospects. The sale at this house yesterday was a very
